How to calculate rebates using points?

Each instrument has different rebates calculated on a points basis. Rebates are quoted in USD for Raw accounts and in Points for Standard accounts, with commissions in other currencies may vary.

Metals example:

If you are a Platinum Level IB and your client is trading XAU/USD on a Standard account, the rebate is 6 points. This is calculated based on the quote currency, which in this case is the USD.

Forex example:

If you are a Platinum Level IB and your client is trading EUR/GBP on a Standard account, the rebate is 6 points. This is calculated based on the quote currency, which in this case is the GBP.

Trading Instruments

IB Level	Rebate Points	Metals	Forex
SILVER	5	1 lot XAU/USD = $1 \times 5 = $5$	1 lot EUR/GBP = $1 \times 5 = $6.70$
GOLD	5.5	1 lot XAU/USD = $1 \times 5.5 = $5.5$	1 lot EUR/GBP = $1 \times 5.5 = $7.10$
PLATINUM	6	1 lot XAU/USD = $1 \times 6 = $6$	1 lot EUR/GBP = $1 \times 6 = $7.70$

Ready to earn more with Social Trading?

Explore additional income streams with Public & Additional Agents

Public Agents

are attached to individual Subscriptions; the agent's income depends directly on how the individual Subscription performs. The fee percentage is fixed and equal for all agents in terms of one Offer.

Additional Agents

are attached to individual Offers rather than Subscriptions, and their income depends directly on how the individual offer performs. The fee percentage is specific to each additional agent.

What's the difference between the two concepts?

Public Agent

- Assigned to an individual Subscription and is visible in that profile.
- Income depends on the Subscription's profit.

Additional Agent

- Attached to a Provider's specific Offer.
- Income depends on how much Performance Fee an offer in total generates for the Provider.
